QUASHES THE INVESTIGATION

Large-Sized Whitewash Brush Brought into Play in the Police Scandal Yesterday Afternoon.

Just why some 400 odd warrants is sued against the stockade, and given into the hands of the police during the period between June 23 and July 14, were not served is still unexplained. An attempt at explanation was made yesterday in Judge Bowman's court, he warrants having been issued under seal of this magistrate, but in the process of the investigation, in fact at the beginning of it, the court stated that if the purpose of the investiga-tion was to inform the court he "would make short of the matter." He did, and there was no investigation. The investigation, staged in the city did, and there was no investigation.

The investigation, staged in the city court, had a good-sized whitewash brush and bucket among the accessories. Chief of Police S. M. Barlow, Lieut R. L. Shannon and Capt. of Detectives R. M. Beckstead were also there. They were represented by Judge A. J. Weber.

A. J. Weber.

The investigation, as much as it amounted to, was carried on at the instigation of the police end, Atty. Weber asking that it be held. City Atty. H. J. Dininny was prompt in his readiness and had a number of witnesses, who were to substantiate his claim that he "could show that in the service of the process of the court against Belle London and the stockade the warrants had been wilfully jockeyed with, and that no honest attempt had been made to serve them," but the court did not care to be informed.

The "investigation" came as the result of the action taken by the city

The "investigation" came as the result of the action taken by the city attorney in July when he called the attention of the court to the fact that he police had failed to serve over 400 warrants issued against inmates of the stockade. The police officers, including Chief Barlow, Lieut. Shannon and the then Sergi Beckstad ware cited. the then Sergt. Beckstead, were cited to appear in court to show why they had been negligent in their duty. Party interests intervened, and with Councilman Mulvey acting as the mediator, and the compromise that Belle London would reinquish the control of the stockade, the city attorney asked that the investigation of the negligent officers go over indefinely.

Atty. Weber, acting for the "American" party and the police department, however, a few days ago asked that the investigation be proceeded with.

DININNY'S STATEMENT.

The hearing was set for yesterday afternoon, and in opening the case City Atty. H. J. Dininny, after reciting the fact that the investigation had been called for by the police read the following statement:

The city attorney's office is able to show:

Between June 23 and July 14, the city attorney filed about 430 complaints against persons in the stockage guity of prostitution; upon which complaints warrants were issued under the seal of this court and the signature of this

All these warrants were delivered to the chief of police or Lieut, Shannon for service not later than 5 p.m. each day except as to the first lot, and many of them before 3 p.m. Each of said warrants, except one lot, was indersed that it might be served in the night

During each of said days there were from 75 to 150 prostitutes plying their calling in the said stockade and liable to arrest on said wayrants from 9 or 10 collecte any north 10 collecte any north 10 to arrest on said warrants from 9 or 10 o'clock a.m. until 10 o'clock p.m. and from about 11 p.m. until 2 or 3 o'clock or later in the morning.

These facts were well known to the chief of police, Lieut. Shannon and Sergt. Beckstead

A pretended effort was made to serve the warrants issued the first day, about 8:30 p.m. A face morned to the control of the control

A pretended effort was made to serve the warrants issued the first day, about $:30 p.m. A few moments before the officer (Beckstead) arrived, the cribs and parlor houses in said stockade were running, but upon the arrival of the officer, most of them were closed. A few were running and the attention of the officer was called to them and the women who stood at the doors, but he refused to arrest them.

he refused to arrest them.

Later the same night a few women were arrested on warrants, but they were not in the stockade.

After the said first day no bona fide attempt was made to make any arrests in the stockade and no attempt whatever was made to serve warrants. whatever was made to serve warrants

QUITE A COINCIDENCE.

The warrants, excepting those issued the first day, were held in the office of the chief of police until about 10 o'clock at night, when they were delivered to Sergt. Beckstead. When the warrants were so delivered the cribs and parlor houses in said stockade were lighted up, as were the streets of the place, but upon the arrival of the officer the place was in darkness; whereupon the officer returned to headquarters. Soon after his departure the place again was lighted up and business was resumed. No other attempt to serve the warrants was made until the next night, when the same farce was enacted.

After June 23, no visit to the stockade was made by any police officer with warrants, except at night, and then only during the time the place was closed, and yet said officers well knew that if an honest attempt to serve said warrants were made at any time after 10 o'clock a.m. and before 10 o'clock p.m. persons liable to arrest on said warrants could be found.

The city attorney suggested to the chief of police and Lieutenant of said warrants could be found.

The city attorney suggested to the chief of police and Lieutenant of Police Shannon that half of the warrants be delivered to the officer on the First South street beat and that half be delivered to the officer on the Second South street beat for service, and that they be instructed as they passed the two entrances of the stockade in walking their beats, that they look in and if they found prostitutes plying their calling, to arrest them, but the suggestion was refused and said attorney was informed that they preferred to "handle the matter from headquarters."

From all of which it would appear

From all of which it would appear that there was an arrangement be-tween the police department and the proprietor or inmates of the stockade that the officer with warrants should call there within a stated time, during which the place should be closed so that no one could be served.

COURT NOT INTERESTED.

After Mr. Dininny had completed his statement to the court, Judge Bow-man inquired the purpose of the investigation. 'If it is for the purpose of preparing for contempt proceedings, of course I will hear it, but if it is simply to inform the court I will make short work of it."

The city attorney stated that the only purpose was to inform the court.

The city attorney stated that the only purpose was to inform the court, "to show how your honor's processes, under your seal, have been absolutely ignored." "The city attorney's office." Mr. Dininny added, "deems it a duty to inform your honor, and we have the evidence at hand to prove that the processes issued out of your court have been ignored. We can show by evidence that these processes issued or against the stockeds have been will. evidence that these processes issued against the stockade have been wil-fully jockeyed with."

Judge Bowman with little comment snounced that he would dismiss the roceedings.
